

Corsica Internet Resources

Introduction

This PDF contains internet links for resources related to Corsica and the Corsica Research Initiative's (CRI) goal of promoting the research of nationalist and autonomist movements, violent and non-violent, on the island of Corsica. The list of resources given below is updated periodically and recommendations for additions to the list are welcomed. The lists are categorised as follows:

1. General Websites on Corsica: Essential background and a reminder that Corsica is not only about guns, bombs and politics. In fact, the island is a tourist hotspot, home to a diverse population, and the vast majority of research conducted on the island isn't related to politics, or violence.
2. Universities, International Organisations and Think Tanks: Valuable sources of reports and hosts of research and journals.
3. Libraries and Journal Collections: Many of the sources cited in the Corsica bibliographies can be accessed through these.
4. Academic Journals: A list of journals that feature Corsica regularly and have a large number of articles about Corsica. This list has been limited to journals with multiple entries as there are a large number of journals cited in the bibliographies in which Corsica appears a limited number of times.
5. Corsican Autonomist and Nationalist Political Parties: Websites of political organisations, with archival material and political arguments.
6. Nationalist Websites: The views of nationalists, unfiltered, and with archival documents on nationalist politics and armed groups.
7. National and Regional Government Websites: Sources of reports on Corsica cited by authors writing about nationalism and separatism.
8. Terrorism Databases: Corsica makes an interesting addition to databases due to the high number of events and low number of casualties.
9. Media: A non-exhaustive list of media organisations who have reported about Corsica in English, French and Corsican.
